

To our valued customers,

We've always been proud of our knowledge of manufacturing, machining, and engineering, but our commitment to service is the foundation of everything we do. We don't just build chucks, we build trust.

Together, we have more than 80 years of combined experience in the industry. We are well aware of the importance of a prompt response when a line goes down or a delivery target looms. Whether you need a Stace-Allen chuck retooled on-site or an entirely new solution, our team does whatever it takes to meet the need.

We're always learning new techniques and adopting new technologies to stay in front of the challenges you face—that's why we're known for finding solutions to chucking problems where others have failed. We combine excellence with innovation and stand behind our products in support of your process.

Since our founding in 1946, we've built relationships with companies of all types and sizes, from small independent machine shops to multinational corporations. No matter who you are and what your workholding needs might be, our commitment is the same: premium solutions backed by straightforward service. We look forward to doing business with you.
